Resident relief

This little resident (top photo) of the Meadows Subdivision got an earful last Thursday night. But he was unfazed. Nearly 100 of his neighbors attended a meeting Thursday at Halecreek School to establish a neighborhood watch program. Gregory Johnson was just one of the residents who expressed his opinions about criminal activity in the neighborhood. Mayor Beverly McAnally and Police Chief Charles Wilmoth were among the local officials in attendance. See story page 3. ANP photos by Bob Denys

Projects planned; park nixed

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

There may not have been a "full house" of concerned citizens, but there was a full agenda before the Romulus Planning Commission at its Monday night meeting in city hall.

Among the more significant actions taken by members of the commission was the denial of a rezoning request for a trailer park proposed for 76 acres north of Wick Road and east of the railroad tracks. According to Dave Paul, building department director, the parcel is presently zoned for apartments but the developer requested a change to residential mobile homes.

At the July 1 commission meeting, many residents voiced their disapproval of the project which is estimated to cost $16 million.

"After a number of reports from different city department heads and the city planner, the commission recommended denial. The final decision will be made by members of the city council at their next meeting," Paul said.

Another project reviewed during the four-hour meeting was approval for the construction of a Super 8 Motel with 63 units on Middlebelt Road.

"Developers still have a long way to go. They have approval on the motel project, but they still need building permits," according to the building department director.

A building addition on Ecorse Road and two different construction sites were also approved.

A site plan was approved for a multi-tenant industrial building in the Oakwood Industrial Park near Eureka Road and the I-275 freeway.

Amoco Oil Company received approval for the demolition of their facility on Middlebelt near Wick Road. The firm intends to redo the site, according to Paul.

Apple Tree Lane Nursing Home, a rehabilitation center on Chase Road and Alamo Rent-A-Car on Middlebelt Road received approval to expand their on-site parking.

"Nothing dominated the agenda during the meeting," said Paul. "Now that these projects are through the planning commission stage, they go to the building department and we start working."

Accused awaits verdict

A young Romulus man awaits a verdict in the trial where he stands accused of shooting his father to death earlier this year.

Richard Leroy Demarest, 20, of Harrison Road was charged with first-degree murder in the shooting death of his father. Richard Leroy Demarest, 44, on Jan. 9.

A 30/30 deer rifle, a Christmas present given by Richard Sr. to his son, was the weapon reportedly used in the shooting.

The mandatory penalty for first-degree murder is life imprisonment with no parole.

Final arguments by the defense and prosecution were presented to the 14-member jury early yesterday morning in Wayne County Circuit Court. Only 12 members of the jury will deliberate the verdict.

Judge Roland Olzark has presided over the trial which began with the jury selection last Wednesday.

Attorney for the prosecution Tom Trzcinski and defense attorney Steve Sonnenberg defended the case.

Sandra Demarest, mother of the accused and wife of the victim, testified. According to Romulus Sgt. Dan Snyder, her testimony was "every bit as exact" as it was during the preliminary examination in January in 34th District Court.

The Wayne County medical examiner, Snyder, Officer Eric Painter and Officer Emmett Barnes were also witnesses.

A decision by the jury is expected at any time.

Crime reports in Romulus down

On the heels of reports from local residents that their neighborhood needs greater police protection, is the compilation of statistics which indicates crime in Romulus is down, for the first time in over a year.

According to Police Chief Charles Wilmoth, highlights of the six-month report include: Calls for police department service are up by 22 percent, or 2,028 additional requests over the same period last year. Officers drove 39,663 more miles on patrol or 22 percent more than for the same period last year. Arrests increased by 35 percent with 305 additional arrests this year.

The total number of crimes reported in Romulus is down 3 percent with 100 less crimes reported than the 2,859 reported last year.

Wilmoth noted, "Criminal activity has been significantly reduced. I don't think many police departments could say that."

Crimes against people are down by 5 percent with 107 less cases reported than the 1,344 cases reported last year. The most notable decrease of activity are rapes, down 11 percent to 24 reported cases, burglary, down 18 percent to 260 cases, auto theft, down 13 percent to 207 cases and arson, down 32 percent to 23 cases.

Increases were reported in the categories of murder with three this year over two last year. Larcenies increased by four cases from the 619 cases reported last year.

Notable increases are in self-initiated activity including: narcotics up 48 percent to 43 cases and drunk driving arrests, up 20 percent up to 265 cases.

The total number of accidents have decreased by 9 percent with 71 accidents less being investigated by the department than last year.

But injury accidents continue to increase with 38 additional cases reported during the first six months this year. Property accidents decreased by 17 percent or 109 less accidents.

Traffic citations increased by 86 percent or a total of 4,263 this year. Last year, 2,298 were issued. Sixty-two percent of these were for hazardous violations or those which can cause accidents. Six people have been killed in fatal accidents compared with two during the same period last year.

"The officers are really doing a good job. Those additional miles driven by our department have shown a definite reduction in crime. And they have shown our presence in the community. In fact, we're doing more today than we have in the history of the department. We have more cars on the streets and in the subdivisions. We respond to all calls.

"The city is unique in layout and size, and sometimes that hinders our response time. We're service oriented. There's not a single officer in this department who doesn't want to give that service. But I cannot correct problems I do not know about. If there's a problem, call me or the department. We have an open door policy," said Wilmoth.

Neighbors arrested after local break-in

Two of the three men arrested by Romulus Police earlier this month in connection with the robbery of a Whitehorn Street residence have been bound over to Wayne County Circuit Court.

Arrested at the scene of the July 9 crime were Richard Reels, 21, and his brother Alvin Reels, 17, both of Whitehorn Street. The next day, Kenney Watson, 17, of Garner Street was also arrested.

The Reels brothers were bound over for trial in Wayne County Circuit Court last week.

All three were arraigned in 34th District Court.

The incident began after a resident called police about a suspected breaking and entering in progress, according to reports. The suspects were spotted shortly after police arrived on the scene several minutes later. Two of the men were arrested on the scene.

"First, they carried the resident's property outside and placed it in the bushes. From the resident's description, police were able to identify the suspects and spotted them standing on Whitehorn. After they were spotted, the three suspects took off running. Police pursued them and caught two of the three men," reported Romulus Police Lt. Ken Kraus.

Watson turned himself into police and will face a preliminary examination today in the Romulus 34th District Court.

Collision kills boy

A young Romulus boy died five days after he was struck by a car driven by a 17-year-old neighbor.

The 10-year-old boy was riding his bike on July 14 when he attempted to cross Middlebelt Road near Eureka Road, according to Romulus police. "At about 5:40 p.m., a vehicle driven by a 17-year-old woman from Romulus was traveling northbound on Middlebelt when the young boy tried to cross the street in front of her on his bike and got hit," police reported.

He was taken to Heritage Hospital in Taylor and later transferred to the University of Michigan Hospital in Ann Arbor where he died on Sunday.

The facts of the case are being reviewed by the Wayne County prosecutor. No charges have been filed, and the names of the victim and driver were not released.

City hires new economic director

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

Dennis Oakes envisions a new life in Romulus.

The newly appointed director of the Romulus Community and Economic Department arrives in time to negotiate the fine details of a proposed billion dollar development project, the largest of its kind in the state and probably the country, he noted.

Oakes recently met with officials from the State Department, the United States Commerce Department, the Wayne County Executive's office, Metro Airport and Don Marrentette, the man responsible for the assembly of the land parcel.

"It was a cast of thousands," said Oakes with a smile.

Of greatest importance was the progress on the site plans of the two I-94 interchanges needed for the project, one at Middlebelt Road and the other at Merriman Road.

So far, more than 700 acres of land north of the freeway between Wayne and Merriman roads have been assembled.

"We're making pretty good progress. Marrentette has met with us and said he's ready to go," Oakes said.

Three issues are of concern at this stage in the development, construction of storm drainage, roads and the Venoy Road overpass.

Financing of these infrastructure improvements would eventually come from the Tax Increment Financing Authority. "At the present time, because of pending litigation regarding TIFA, no city can issue the necessary bonds used in the TIFA process," said Oakes.

Instead, the city will allow the project to be self-financed. This is the same mechanism utilized by Wendall Flynn in (See DIRECTOR, page 3),

Resident finds military career rewarding

Jaquit "Jacob" Byrd, 22, joined the United States Air Force last December. He has since graduated from basic training at Lackland Air Force Base in Texas, and is presently stationed in Shaw Air Force Base in South Carolina. He will be there the remaining six years of his enlistment, according to his parents, Dorothy and Melvin Byrd of Hunt Street. Byrd is a graduate of Romulus High School and attended both Wayne County Community College and Wayne State University where he studied computer science and dentistry. He now works as a mechanic repairing military aircraft. He and his wife, Dawn, have an eight-month-old daughter, Brittany.

the Airport Parking project when he financed all the infrastructure of his project with the expectation of being repaid from the TIFA funds.

This project is part of a TIFA district. TIFA allows the city to capture all new taxes, including city, school and county taxes and siphon the money into infrastructure development of roads and sewers.

"Nothing is concrete or on paper yet. But the agreement worked well with Airlines Parking. The interstate access is the major catalyst and MDOT must decide what action is taken before we continue. The decision about Vin-ing Road, either an access or just an overpass, should be decided within the next month and a half," he said.

"This is the biggest develop-ment project I've ever heard of. I've been told it's the largest of its kind in the country. This is, frankly, where I'll be putting most of my time. The impact of this development on the city will be phenomenal," he said.

Oakes said he will also concentrate on encouraging residential housing and industrial development along the I-275 freeway corridor.

Oakes was originally from Indiana but moved to Michigan in 1972. He is a graduate of Ball State University in Muncie, Ind., and majored in urban planning.

He's worked with the regional planning commission in Jackson, Mich. and the American Corps of Engineers. He joined the Downriver Community Conference staff in 1984 as industrial development manager and assisted in the Mazda and Penstone projects, major catalysts in the economy of the Downriver community.

Yes, we have a winner. In the Seventh Annual patio judging contest conducted at Romulus Senior Towers, Alice Briggs of the fourth floor was selected after lengthy discussion by a distinguished panel of local judges. Briggs, pictured left of Mayor Beverly McNally, noted that all her hard work certainly paid off. She is also pictured above with the mayor on the left and Jean Smith, building manager on the right. Second place went to Ann Lezniak and third place to Ethel LaMar. # Residents watch officials at meeting

ANP Staff Writer

Romulus city officials were out in force last Thursday evening when they met with residents of the Meadows subdivision in Halecreek School to establish a Neighborhood Watch Program in the neighborhood.

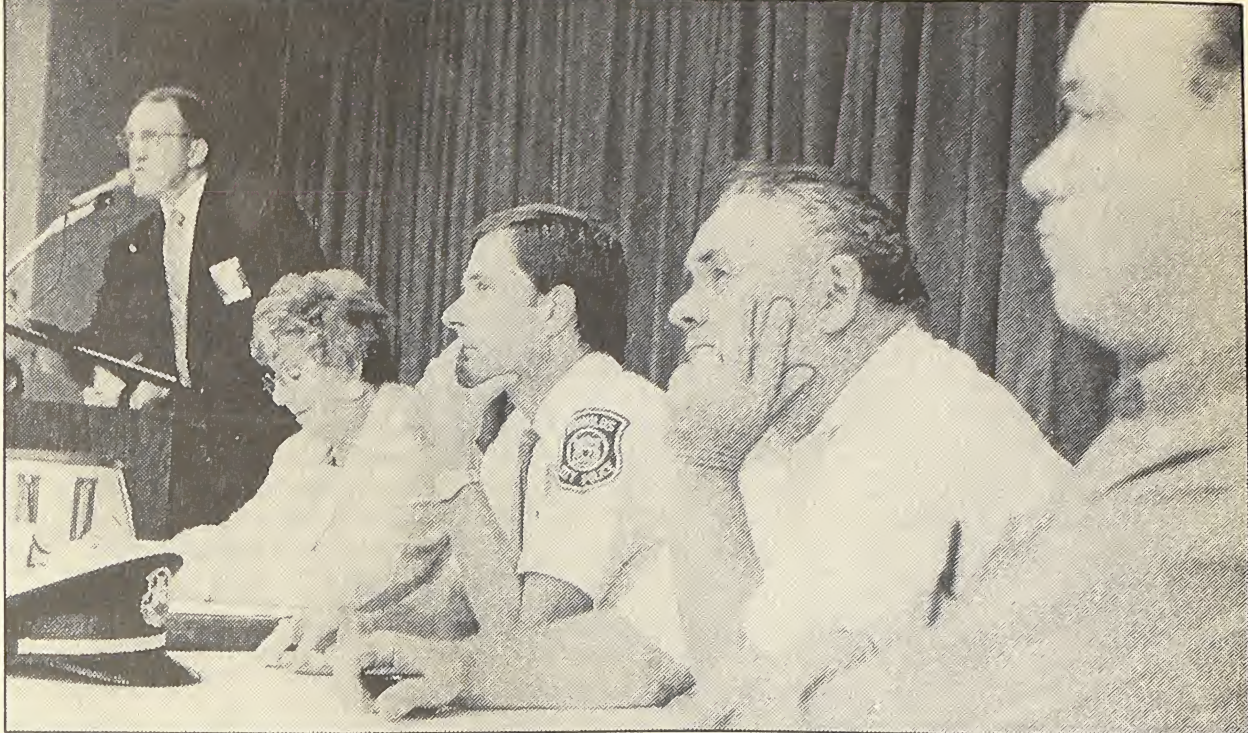

Almost one hundred residents crowded the school auditorium to discuss local police protection. Police Chief Charles Wilmoth, Detective Dave Early and several other police officers as well as such city officials as Mayor Beverly McNally, City Clerk Linda Choate, Mayor Pro Tem Mary Ann Banks and councilmen Pete Bergeron, Junior Block, Alan Lambert and Barry Baumann also attended the meeting.

Two weeks earlier on July 6, a signature petition with nearly 400 names of residents who live in this southeast Romulus neighborhood was presented to members of city council.

Citizens requested action from "elected civil servants" to "supply adequate law enforcement in this critical area."

One by one, residents described to city officials, robberies, accidents and specifically, speeding in their neighborhood. Local police patrols and their response times were also questioned.

Romulus police responded to these complaints immediately and many traffic citations were issued throughout the neighborhood in the days which followed the council meeting.

"Word traveled fast," said one resident. Several residents grumbled with tickets in hand because they were among the first to receive traffic violations during the crackdown.

At the council meeting last week, Wilmoth spoke before members of city council and noted he was on vacation the week before when the petitions were presented. "That was the first time I learned of the situation."

He refuted complaints about response time in a serious injury motorcycle accident last May. Where residents said police arrived on the scene in 20 minutes, police records show it was only five minutes, according to Wilmoth.

About that time, Councilman Barry Baumann said after he called the ambulance company, "Records indicated an 11 minute response time and not the 30 minutes as suggested by some residents."

At Halecreek School last Thursday, residents again emphasized their concerns and officials responded. Ironically, one resident recalled the night he and his family moved into their home on Middlebelt Road near the Meadows neighborhood 25 years ago. "Somebody broke in," the resident said.

"We are here in a supportive role," said McNally. "And we're here to set up the mechanisms to establish that. The city has 40 young police officers dedicated to Romulus."

"Neighborhood Watch is the answer," Wilmoth said. "Individually, we can't do much but together these problems can be solved. We must reduce the opportunity for crime. We are often our own worst enemy. Let's talk about the future and get organized. If I'm wrong I'll tell you I'm wrong. If you want the police to have Gestapo powers, then I can take care of your problems."

Residents talked about drugs in their community and the lack of a recreation facility for youth.

"I'm not going to cure a drug problem that has been neglected in America for the past 20 years nor am I going to correct youth problems caused by their own parents. What each of us can do is take care of our own. But we will help you with those things," said McNally.

Detective Early noted that as been shown in the past week with the death of three officers in the line of duty, "We are human. We have families and tragedy happens. I'll stay until 2 in the morning to listen to everybody's complaints," he said.

Officer John Smagner organizer of the Neighborhood Watch Program in the city said, "The program is simple, you are our eyes and ears. Turn on your lights and engrave your property. Engravers are available from the department. Deny the opportunity for criminals. I'll show you what you have to do to be more careful and to secure your home."

Resident John Lewis, former deputy chief of the Romulus Police, who has lived on Leroy Street for ten years, known as a local drag strip, said, "It's a good neighborhood. I have no intention of moving. The subdivision is mellowing. It's basically a decent neighborhood with a melting pot of various ethnic groups. I'm proud of Romulus. People do work together."

4 students experience state government

Five Romulus High School students witnessed the American system of government first hand when they participated in the annual American Legion State Program last month.

A state program for entering seniors duplicates the very process by which the state and national government in Lansing and Washington D.C. operates, according to John Domas, Romulus High School counselor.

Leonard Barr, Eric Strohschein and Gerald Cutler joined 1,000 other outstanding young men from across the state and attended the 50th Annual American Legion Boys State Program on the campus of Michigan State University in East Lansing.

One week earlier, Faith Ann Hammers and Renee Marie Hardt joined 500 other outstanding young women from around the state to attend the 47th Annual American Legion Auxiliary Girls State Program at Central Michigan University in Mt. Pleasant. All participants were selected by their school. Each recipient received a $160 scholarship awarded by the Romulus Rotary Club, the Romulus Progressive Club and the Romulus Kiwanis Club. The students will enter high school this fall as seniors.

"Each student will learn how to work within a political party, run for office, achieve legislative goals, evaluate social questions and work for the common good," said Domas.

They also learn "the priceless lesson of team participation while maintaining their own individuality."

The program emphasizes the importance of government in modern life and "to stimulate a deep and lasting interest in government."

"It is hoped these young citizens will leave the program with a mature appreciation of some of the basic strengths and weaknesses of the American System of government," he said.

opinions

They are friends, indeed

Who are your friends?
The families of three slain Inkster police officers learned who their friends were last week – and in numbers. Only a few hours had passed since the tragedy, in which the officers were gunned down in the July 9 hostage event, when the first few dollars began pouring in. And pouring in. And pouring in.
At last count, more than $40,000 in private donations had been accepted at the front desk of the Inkster police station for the three families, and more funding was on the way.
Canisters with the simple words “Inkster police officers’ fund” seemed to tell all throughout the area last week. Grocery stores, banks, offices and restaurants – no business was immune – joined forces and participated in the fundraising effort.
Businesses and industries followed suit with donations in the hundreds and even thousands of dollars. Scout groups, neighborhood organizations, police agencies and churches. The list continues on and on.
Who are your friends?
Few of us who joined in the fundraising effort ever knew officers Clay Hoover, Dan Dubiel and Sgt. Ira Parker. Although we’ve learned much about them, sadly, after the fact, we would have never cast a second glance at them when passing down the street. But we were always their friends.
The tragedy of July 9 has given us all the ability to transpose our own families, our own loved ones and our own police officers into a situation as shocking and saddening as the Inkster one. The tragedy has once again shown that despite ongoing battles between cities, fights between neighbors and race “riots” that seem to defy the civil rights movement, we are all bonded together by a compassion for human lives, a compassion that draws us together in times of trouble. A compassion that knows no social stereotypes, economic classes or ethnic backgrounds.

We’re proud of a community of people so generous and so supportive of the three Inkster families as this one. We’re proud that on the heels of what could have been another gash in our community image, we as a community have shown our true colors and emerged with dignity and compassion.
Indeed, it is sad that it took an event as tragic and pointless as this one to cause a display of our true humanistic values. True, no amount of our prayers, our financial contributions or words of kindness will ever serve as a replacement for the lives of three men we can now only call heroes. Nothing we do as a community can make up for the huge loss in the Hoover, Dubiel and Parker families. Nothing we will ever do will erase the picture that goes through the minds of most motorists passing by the Bungalow Motel on Michigan Avenue in Inkster.
And nothing we do will soon take away the plight of the Inkster community as it digs its way out of the biggest local tragedy of all time.
But we are your friends. And we’re here to help.

Don’t tamper with success

Don’t burst what Canton residents have worked so long to achieve.
That message is aimed at the Canton Township Board of Trustees who last week discussed a possible pullout of township funding in the annual Mayflower Hotel Hot Air Balloon Festival. Township Clerk Linda Chuhran questioned whether or not the $5,000 the township contributes to the festival each year is a good investment. Township Treasurer Gerald Brown concurred with Chuhran’s questions.
The answer to the board members’ question is clearly only a matter of adding and subtracting.
In the seventh year, the balloon festival has grown to be one of the most talked-about attractions in the area. Each year, more than 100,000 visitors – according to Plymouth chamber of commerce officials – flock to the area to participate in the show . . . and shop in local stores, sleep in area motels and eat in area restaurants.

Chuhran and Brown also questioned whether police protection should be provided in an event that is sponsored by a Plymouth business – the Mayflower Hotel – and staged on the field between the two Plymouth-Canton high schools.
The relationship between Plymouth and Canton has been a longstanding one. That relationship is obvious in the business community, the schools and the residents in the two communities. The balloon festival can be no exception.
For Canton to pull out of the festival, a huge error in the numbers game would be made.
Each year 100,000 people are brought into the town. Each year $5,000 is spent for promotion, in addition to public safety protection. Five cents is spent for each new person brought to the community. Quite a bargain in marketing standards.
“Don’t mess with success.” In the end, only Canton Township and its residents will suffer.

A teen turns 20

During the past 20 years I’ve followed the progress of Wayne County Community College through its eventful birth, innovative infancy, tumultuous teens and finally into its maturity.
The saga of the college in many ways resembles the stages of an individual’s growth. The idea was conceived at the time of the 1967 Detroit riot as a step toward offering better educational opportunities for all of the citizens of Wayne County – its noble birthright was intended to produce a stepping stone to upgrading jobs and establishing careers through education for all of the people in the county.
Two years later, the idea was born when dozens of centers opened in schools, community centers and in other existing facilities – no matter where you lived in Wayne County the college was in (or close to) your neighborhood. WCCC brought the college to the people in a way that had not been attempted before. Exciting and innovative as the idea was, it was soon found that the neighborhood college was not the most practical and efficient method of operation.
The teen years of WCCC were filled with all of the trials and tribulations that one might expect of a “youngster” striving to find a mature identity of his own. These years were not only difficult ones for the administration and staff, but for those who had affection for the college and had to quietly stand on the sidelines and wait for the awkward teen to emerge into a confident adult.

joan dyer speaking

A recent visit to the Western Wayne Campus proved to me that the college has reached maturity and has corrected many of the problem areas that emerged during its “tumultuous teens.” It is well on the way to fulfilling its original dream, minus the occasional nightmares of the past, and it is particularly pleasing to me to once again feel comfortable singing the praises of WCCC.
Along with about approximately 10,000 other students, I enrolled in the college when the doors first opened. The tremendous influx of students – hundreds more than anticipated – caused a shortage of textbooks and other equipment at the various sites. Our enthusiasm wasn’t dampened, however, and almost every enrollee was eager to relate a story about his or her long-awaited hopes and dreams to attend college.
As I recall, the dedication of the part-time staff – many of whom were full-time instructors at major colleges and universities – was phenomenal. For $10 a credit hour, we received the same level of instruction for which students in other colleges paid many times that price. In addition, instructors stayed after class to answer questions and give encouragement. One administrator regularly fired up the balky furnace at one center on his way downtown. Such evidence of dedication were commonplace in those early days of the college.

There were hundreds, if not thousands, of success stories. Mothers attended college classes while their youngsters were in school, night-shift workers stopped by for morning classes on their way home from their jobs and day-shift workers enrolled for night classes. Numerous young people who admitted to “partying away” their parents’ money in college, returned to classes paid for by themselves with a new determination to succeed. Many of those students graduated from WCCC and continued their education at other colleges and universities. Many others upgraded their jobs through their special training or entered new fields.
No matter what lies ahead for the college in the coming years, I hope the spirit of wide-eyed excitement, enthusiasm and dedication that prevailed in the infancy of WCCC will return in its mature years.

Inkster resident shares grief

To The Editor:
The Inkster community has suffered a loss in the tragic deaths of three of our police officers. Certainly it is a loss that is most personal to the families of the officers, but it is a loss very much felt by brother officers on the Inkster police force.
The police officers of the city of Inkster may guard their grief jealously for theirs is a closely knit family. I quite agree that those of us who are merely citizens of this community cannot fully appreciate the trauma of their loss, and we do, indeed, fail to grasp the tensions and the risks that they face daily.
Many of us have witnessed citizen complaints to the city council that the police have acted with undue force in certain situations. At times like this the apprehensions of their dangerous jobs become too obvious. I hope that the citizenry can now better understand our officers and the daily dangers of their jobs.

We all share in this grief and deeply, oh so deeply, mourn the deaths of officer Clay Hoover, officer Dan Dubiel and Sgt. Ira Parker.

Citizen cops column no laughing matter

To The Editor:
Regarding the article on “Citizen Cops” or “CC’s” on July 1, 1987, I kept waiting for the punch line, finding it hard to believe that the article was written with a straight face and not “tongue-in-cheek”.

It would appear that the rules of good conduct were written for other than Sherry Woodard, who is so piously sure of her “self-righteousness”.
I had believed that express lanes were provided for the convenience of customers picking up a few items and that their proper use was dependent on the user’s voluntary, respectful observance of the procedures established. If the shoe were on the other foot and if she were behind someone who was over the suggested amount (perhaps even four, six or eight items over), would she have felt the same?
I believe Woodard must also be the only one who writes checks in the “cash only” line, waiting for the tally before starting the check, and then writing it in her ledger before leaving the checkout. Perhaps the snickers were directed at Woodard?
As to the banking incident, I fail to understand how the “gas-guzzling Lincoln” is relevant, and is it not the business of the teller and the person behind her in line when she is.

It would seem that Woodard has had a great deal of experience with citizen cops, probably brought on by her inconsiderate behavior. Had I been the person behind her in line, I might have been tempted to act as one. But then, perhaps the assumption that she was a lady who had made an unintentional mistake might have held me from any direct comment or action.
I say, “Hurrah for the citizen cops.”

Budget blues

Finances remain key concern

By BOB DENYS

analysis

They successfully ousted the drain commissioner, abolished the road commission and saw an end to continuing conflicts between the legislative and executive branches of county government.

But the biggest problem following county reorganization still facing members of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners is a financial one. A $27 million annual budget deficit serves as a daily reminder of the fiscal problem, according to two local county commissioners.

"The key to the successful reorganization of county government is financial," said county Commissioner Milt Mack (D-Wayne). "We've managed to control spending. Now the problem is in areas where we have no control, specifically, the area of indigent care."

Indigent health care has become part of the everyday vocabulary at the county level, Mack said, and is the impetus of an ongoing political battle between county and state lawmakers. Indigent health care includes funding of doctor visits, hospital stays and medications for low-income families throughout the county. The Westland Medical Center - formerly Wayne County General Hospital - had been the biggest on-site health provider for the indigent for several years, according to Mack.

But providing health coverage for the indigent comes with a price, Mack explained. Sometimes a steep one.

It's no secret, Mack said, that indigent care has a proportionate relationship to the county budget deficit. According to county officials, indigent health care accounts for 90 percent of the deficit. In 1987, the county budget was set at $200 million. About $12.5 million of that was allocated to care for the indigent.

The problem, however, Mack said, is that the indigent health care price tag in Wayne County is $32 million. A war now being waged between county and state officials focuses on whether the county or the state should pick up the tab for the extra $20 million.

Traditionally, Mack said, state finance officials have provided the added funding. At the same time, however, the state officials have sent a "bill" for state-provided funds, a "bill" that eventually is dubbed the county deficit.

"State officials send a bill for that additional $20 to 25 million back to the county. That amount is later added to the county deficit," Mack explained.

Michael Dugan, deputy county executive, said negotiations are presently under way with state officials concerning payment for the indigent health care deficit. A final decision should be reached within the next few weeks with possible legislative action due in the fall, Dugan said. Until then, he added, "the county is in a holding pattern."

County roads are a future project for county commissioners. One proposal already discussed is the hiking of gasoline taxes by about 3 cents to fund a multi-stage road improvement project.

Woman assaulted in home

WESTLAND - A 20-year-old Westland woman was assaulted by a masked man who broke into her home last Sunday night, according to police reports.

The woman told Westland police that she had been alone in her home on the 300 block of Dobson, when a man described as a white male, between the ages of 20-30 grabbed her as she exited her bathroom.

The man immediately covered the woman's mouth and forced her to the couch, reports said, where he proceeded to tie her hands and gag her with a scarf.

The woman said that the man then stood over her for approximately five minutes and stared at her, not saying anything.

The man was apparently in the woman's home for about 10 minutes before exiting a side door.

The woman said

she waited a while before untying herself and then called her boyfriend, who notified police.

The woman told police she had been

Commissioners eye positive future

Tightening the belt and moving forward

County Commissioner Kay Beard (D-Inkster) admitted county problems are serious and financial in nature.

"Revenues have not kept up with state-mandated expenditures. Through the years we have cut and cut," Beard said. "The county employs half the number of people it did in 1978. We've cut programs. The deficit comes not from bad management. Believe me, we've tightened our belt during the past few years. We've cut the fat through the muscle, and now we're into the bone. I don't know how we can manage without help from the state."

One way of making cuts, Beard said, was in the elimination of the office of the county Drain Commissioner. Last year, county voters overwhelmingly decided to abolish the office. The responsibilities of the department have been assumed by the newly created Office of Public Services, an executive-branch agency, Beard explained.

But "all is not awful" in the county government scene, Beard continued. A stepped-up effort in county litter control has resulted in cleaner freeways throughout the area, Beard said. A county Department of Economic Development has been established to oversee the $450 million expansion of the county-owned, Metropolitan Airport in Romulus.

Other plusses, Beard said, include:

- Video cameras and mirrors installed at the Wayne County jail. The equipment will take the place of 58 jail employees;
- A new "super sewer" project expected to hit the drawing boards next year;
- The aversion of county worker layoffs;
- New business investments in the county expected to total more than $1 billion by the end of 1988.

Reorganization is finally taking root

The reorganization in Wayne County government began in 1983 when voters approved the adoption of a new county charter. The charter reduced the number of county commissioners on the board from 28 members to 15. The charter also created the office of county executive.

William Lucas served as the first county executive in what some commissioners called the battle of the governmental branches. The Lucas administration and the board of commissioners often waged a war head-on to give the infancy years of county reorganization its toughest test.

Last year, former Livonia Mayor Edward McNamara stepped into the executive's chair and took the reins of county government into his own hands.

And the test, finally, appears to have ended.

"(Before county reorganization) all county departments were basically independent," Mack said. "Now, they're tied together under the county executive. McNamara is the ideal person for this time in county government. Wayne County is unique for its problems as well as its assets. The test now is whether we can work together and manage these financial problems."

A county committee has been organized to spearhead a proposed $450 million expansion of the Metropolitan Airport in Wayne County. ANP file photo

Business group spurs development

By JOAN MARY DYER
Belleville City Editor

The Metro Region Business Alliance may have been the best kept secret in western Wayne County, but now the news about it is out.

Greg Pitoniak, of the Wayne County Economic Development Corp. and MRBA, made a presentation on the agency to members of the Conference of Western Wayne.

The concept was established by the state as Community Growth Alliances, whereby individual counties would set up services to attract new businesses and enhance the opportunities for established ones, Pitoniak said. Because of the large size of Wayne County, three separate business alliances were established — one for Detroit, another for the downriver area and a third (the MRBA) which takes in the remainder of the county.

The three focuses of the alliances are area development, local procurement and a small business center, according to Pitoniak. Area development efforts are being coordinated by Schoolcraft College.

This includes aiding businesses with site selection, zoning, wetlands issues and helping local communities to retain businesses.

Pitoniak said the MRBA has had some difficulty in marketing the "not easily identifiable" geographic area. He said that presentations such as the one made to CCW should help to give the alliance more visibility and introduce area people to the services it provides. The MRBA also is seeking funding from the members of its service area.

Pitoniak noted that some 100 organizations are currently claiming to be involved in economic development. He said MRBA — through its state resources — can go "over and above" the services provided by other organizations.

Wayne Mayor Pat Norton told Pitoniak that if he wants to "sell" his program, then he must tell some success stories to the member communities.

MRBA will provide the conference with a quarterly report noting the progress that is being made. No decision on funding the local unit has been made.

Lawmakers try new curbs on drugs

Last year, Congress passed the Anti-Drug Omnibus Act, aimed at stopping the flow of illegal drugs through society. Michigan has received $20 million in federal funds through this act, which state education, law enforcement and health care officials will be using to "beef up" the fight against life-wasting substance abuse.

The state will use $4.3 million of the federal money to expand a successful grade-school program designed to reduce the demand for drugs. The Michigan Model school health education curriculum is currently reaching about 145,000 school children in grades K-6, teaching them about the dangers of drugs and substance abuse. The new money from Washington will allow Michigan educators to expand the Michigan Model to reach 400,000 students from kindergarten through eighth grade. Another $1.8 million will be used for grants to other education programs targeted to early intervention and education for youth at risk of becoming substance abusers. The aim of the model curriculum and other programs is to eliminate the demand for drugs by educating even the very youngest about their hazards.

$6.1 million of the federal funds will be disbursed as grants to crime-fighting agencies for more comprehensive enforcement of anti-drug laws. Law enforcement agencies could use the grant money to move against major drug dealers. Increased enforcement and corrections efforts would do much to stop the flow of illegal drugs from the top level of the criminal world.

The remainder of the money that Michigan has received from the federal drug act, about $8 million, will be available as grant money to local agencies offering treatment services to drug users.

Michigan officials have dedicated the money from Washington to those activities which seem to be most effective in combating the destruction associated with illegal drug use. Educators will be showing school children at all stages of their learning that drugs destroy the mind, the body and the future. Police and other law enforcement personnel have more resources to move against the major drug dealers. And there will be more help available for Michigan residents who have already become victims of drug abuse. The effective use of the federal appropriations is just part of the effort we must all undertake to prevent the use of drugs in Michigan. The fight against drugs has many battlefields — the home, school, in the courts and on the streets.

Westland church is host to South Carolina visitors

By JANICE FRITZ
ANP Staff Writer

Last weekend, members of the People's Community Missionary Baptist Church in Westland played host to more than 250 visitors from the Welfare Baptist Church, in Belton, South Carolina.

Rev. John D. Hearn, pastor of the People's Community church, said that he was very pleased with the outcome of the weekend, which has now become a traditional way for families from his church to meet with families from other churches from across the country.

"I think that it's wonderful, when such a large group of people who have never before met, can get together for a weekend of good, old fashioned fun and togetherness, and then by the end of the weekend, they have made lasting friendships," Mr. Hearn said.

"The church is like one large family, and so when two congregations get together for picnics and other outings, it really is just one, big family reunion," the minister added.

Hearn said that two busloads of people came in from South Carolina early last Friday morning and that he and members of his church entertained the visitors by taking them on an outing to Canada for the day, where they saw some of the historical monuments of that country.

Later on, Mr. Hearn said, the out-of-towners were treated to a choral performance by the People's Community Church choir.

An official welcome was extended to the guests at a Saturday morning breakfast, given in their honor at the Inkster Recreation Complex, on Middlebelt Road.

Mayor Charles T. "Trav" Griffin was present to give guests what Mr. Hearn called a "...warm, warm, warm welcome."

Garden of our Little Friends

34224 FORD ROAD • WESTLAND

Garden of our Little Friends is a very beautiful, permanent care, modern cemetery available in Westland for the use of families who want to provide a permanent resting place for their pets.

Often because of heavy medical expense for the pet, at the time of its death, it's hard for pet families to arrange a decent burial. This is why we suggest that cemetery and burial arrangements for pets be arranged ahead of time just as most of us do for ourselves.

If you feel that at the death of your pet you will want it buried in a place of permanent beauty, where you can visit privately and at your leisure, then wouldn't it be better to make those arrangements now rather than waiting until the time of immediate need?

Hardware: Family nails big business

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

At age 11, Tony Kopas of Romulus began sorting nails and selling hammers at his father's Romulus Hardware store. Today, at age 46, Kopas has aged slightly and assumed the title of owner. But his job remains nearly unchanged.

Kopas did acquire a few new employees, however, following his marriage to Mary Jo 24 years ago. Now, Kopas' son Ron, 12, and daughters, Michelle, 18, Jeanette, 16, and Elaine, 14, share important roles in the success story of their father's business. Just as Tony himself had done 35 years before.

"Today, Ron stocks and marks merchandise in the store, exactly the way I learned. Michelle was my first to graduate from Romulus High School and will work here until September. Then she starts at Adrian College. I'm lucky the whole family likes the hardware business," Tony said.

"Romulus Hardware had been located on Goddard Road for years before my dad came to Romulus in 1934. I bought the business from him in 1971," he explained.

Throughout his childhood, Kopas said the family owned three or four stores in town. He grew up on Delano Street behind the family grocery store at the corner of Goddard Road. But it was the hardware business which intrigued him the most.

ASSOCIATED NEWSPAPERS: So how is the hardware business in Romulus?

KOPAS: I don't think it has changed much. A lot of business is with small commercial operations, but we service the airport, hotels and the airlines. From Northwest on down, they all come in. The airport has brought much progress to the community.

Technically, there are three hardware stores in Romulus, but this is the only one downtown.

We run it the old-fashioned way. We belong to a hardware chain, Hardware Wholesale Inc., the second largest chain in the United States.

ANP: Has the hardware business changed much throughout the years?

KOPAS: I don't think the business has changed much. I don't use a computer, and we still stock many of the same items we did years ago. It's run the old-fashioned way.

However, one major change in the hardware business is plastic piping. A homeowner can come in here and plumb a kitchen or bathroom in one-third the time, at one-third the cost. Just a few years ago, 100 percent of pipes sold were copper or galvanized. Now, it's only 20 percent.

ANP: What organizations do you belong to in the community?

KOPAS: The mayor appointed me to the board of the Downtown Development Authority. I belong to the Chamber of Commerce and at one time served as president. I'm treasurer of both the Romulus Building Authority and the Romulus Rotary Club. I'm in the Usher's Club of St. Aloysius Church. I'm active with the Michigan Week Festival. Another businessman, Lou Blitz, and I started the downtown sidewalk sale, forerunner of the festival.

ANP: What do you think about the future of downtown and Romulus?

KOPAS: Our downtown is not expanding like other small-city downtowns. We have a small image problem that will take time to overcome. Of course, we're partially to blame. The community needs greater involvement by local businessmen. We need more downtown parking.

ANP: How would feel if a shopping center came into town?

KOPAS: I wouldn't be afraid, that's for sure. I would welcome a shopping center. And there's no doubt the city could support an active downtown as well as a shopping center.

ANP: What kind of parent are you?

KOPAS: Like my own parents, I run a "tight ship." I'm strict. God has been good to my family. We go to church almost religiously. We do many activities as a family. My son, wife and I play a lot of golf together. We're proud of our kids.

IN THE MILITARY, area residents are making news. Airman Kevin P. Haman, the son of Barbara J. Haman of Belleville, participated in the Strategic Air Command annual readiness training exercise, "Gloval Shield 87." He is a security specialist with the 379th Security Police Squadron at Wurtsmith Air Force Base. Second Lt. James L. Wertz, the son of David E. and Burma M. Wertz of Belleville, has graduated from U.S. Air Force pilot training and has received silver wings at Williams Air Force Base, Ariz. Airman Gregory A. Jones, the son of Allen E. Jones of Romulus, and Darleen V. Jones, of Livonia, has graduated from Air Force basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas.

ANNE MARIE TWYDELL, 17, was chosen by the Michigan State Association of the National Campers and Hikers Association as their 1988 Teen Queen. She will represent Michigan at the fourth largest pageant in the world, Miss NCHA. Ann Marie, a senior at Belleville High School, is the daughter of Ken and Pat Twydel, and is the sister of Dawn Twydel, who was the 1984 Teen Queen. Anne Marie plans to attend Eastern Michigan University, where she will study to become an oceanographer.

AND THERE'S MORE honors in the Twydel family this week. Ken Twydel, an employee of the United Parcel Service, was installed as president of the Michigan State Association of the NCHA at the general meeting May 17. Ken and wife Pat have been married for 22 years and have lived in Belleville since 1970. He has been active in the NCHA since 1972, as a founder of the MSA scholarship, Michigander editor, past state insignia director and a field director for the Wayne County District.

THE HURON VALLEY GIRL SCOUT Council has announced that Jennifer Doty, Dawn Durham, Karen Eller and Heather Lynn Stout, all from Belleville, have earned Girl Scouting's highest honor, the Girl Scout Gold Award. This award represents a year's worth of work and accomplishment in the areas of leadership, community service, career planning and personal development. The plan for fulfilling the requirements of the award is created by the scout herself and is carried out in cooperation with an advisor. After the project is completed, the scout takes part in a review board interview which evaluates her work. The four Belleville scouts were among only eight to win the coveted award in the Huron Valley Council.

MARY LINDSAY, OF ROMULUS, a student at the University of Michigan-Dearborn, recently took part in a political internship program entitled: "A Comparative Political Experience: The Parliamentary System Face to Face." In cooperation with the Canadian government, 22 students from the Ann Arbor and Dearborn campuses spent five weeks serving as office staff aides for members of Parliament (M.P.). Students were placed with members of the three major parties according to their backgrounds and spent their time working directly with the M.P., as well as attending seminars and doing constituency casework. The program was designed to give American students a realistic look at American government, as our neighbors see it, and it is considered by the students to be very successful. According to Mary, "I can see a lot of Canadians point of view on the things that deal with the U.S. I understand a lot more than I did before I came here."

PECULIAR PETS

Pets. We all have them. We love them. We use them as an outlet for our most intimate discussions and confessions. But what determines what kind of pet will best suit our individual lifestyle? Diane Pianowski, of Garden City, is employed at the Cute-N-Cuddly Pet Shop, located on South Wayne Road in Westland. She said that she has worked with animals in nearly every job that she has had, including a stint at a veterinarian's office and the Detroit Race Course.

"There's only one real requirement that you must have in order to work in a pet shop — a real fondness of animals. They need a lot of TLC," Pianowski said.

Animals reveal part of personality

Pianowski said the most common pets are still dogs and cats. But, she added, tropical fish are inching up on the popularity charts.

Domestic rats, said Pianowski, are the most unique animals sold in the pet shop, although she said that most people still tend to confuse the animal with sewer rats. Working in a pet store is sure to net some strange requests, and Pianowski's story is no exception.

Some customers have asked for alligators and chinchillas, pets that are by law classified as "exotic." However, Pianowski said, Cute-N-Cuddly is not licensed to sell pets of an exotic sort.

What the store can sell, however, are the dogs, cats and fish most often sought after by the general public. But who buys what depends on the personality image that person is trying to achieve, Pianowski continued.

"As stereotypical as it may seem, more men still tend to buy dogs, and more women buy cats. For some reason, a lot of men don't like cats. I think it's because cats are more sneaky or something. Whatever the reason, they still stick with 'man's best friend.'

"Teenagers seem to go for the rats and the tropical fish. They are particularly intrigued by the piranhas," said Pianowski.

She added that more older women are buying birds as pets, since birds require less maintenance than do dogs or cats.

"Dogs and cats are still the main family pets, and that will probably never change."

Working in a pet store does have one disadvantage, Pianowski will quickly admit.

"It's very easy to become attached to certain animals, and then to really feel sad to see them go, once they are sold. It's really hard to let them go."

Unnamed deer is at heart of business

An unnamed deer waits patiently in the back yard of a Romulus business for the day when it, too, can become famous.

He doesn't hope to attain a famous status like his distant cousin with the red nose, Rudolph, nor the rest of Santa's sleigh party. And as far as becoming a movie star like Bambi, well, this deer might just settle for a small part in the daytime soaps or maybe a low-budget cartoon.

Nevertheless, this newborn deer, born one month ago at Springer Archery on Huron River Drive in Romulus, has shown a definite stage presence. He loves people, especially kids.

Jeannette Bowman, vice-president of Springer Archery, said that the business has been home for area deer for about five years.

"We began with a male and female, and you can guess what happened. Each year, the deer couple have added another baby to their growing family. We now have four deer and have gotten rid of one," Bowman said.

The deer at the Romulus business are of a European breed called the Fallow deer. Characteristics, Bowman said, include being smaller than the common, white-tailed deer with dark-brown spots.

Despite the irregularity of keeping deer as pets in urban Romulus, Bowman said the animal has never created a problem with the law. Even the Department of Natural Resources inspected the deer site and "found everything in order," Bowman said a license is not necessary to keep deer, and the city ordinances allow for such a pet.

"Of course, these deer are pets," Bowman stressed. "In fact, because they are so popular, each year after the birth of a new baby, we sponsor a 'Name the Deer Contest.' Contest winners named the mother, Snowflake, and the father, Wildfire."

The deer have caused a few problems with other wildlife, however. According to Bowman, the deer were once bothered by packs of dogs that tunneled their way underneath the fence. Cement blocks quickly remedied the situation, Bowman said.

Another problem comes every year in September, Bowman said, when females are in season and males attempt to fight each other.

"We don't keep the males for that reason," Bowman explained.

The animals are fed bales of hay, goat feed and lots of apples.

"They love strawberries, carrots, beets and corn on the cob. Basically, we go to Block's Vegetable Stand on Eureka Road in Romulus and pick up a carload," she said.

"(The deer) don't have much personality, but what they do have," she continued, "you have to notice."

Peacocks add flair to everyday living

While robins, sparrows and mourning doves are common in area backyards, Roger and Diane Ferguson have added a pair of peacocks to the more common varieties of birds that inhabit their property.

The birds were given to the Fergusons by a young man in the neighborhood who was leaving for college and needed someone to care for them. The male bird had wandered away several times — always ending up on the Ferguson's property — so he felt they were the most appropriate people to take the exotic pair.

Because the peacock and peahen are able to fly, they must be caged, Diane said. Even though they are looked upon as natives of warmer climates, they are able to "weather the Michigan winters well," she said. The birds eat a simple diet of cracked corn in a mash and "drink lots of water."

Contrary to common belief, the fan of feathers on the peacock — only the male has the colorful plumage — is not a tail, but a crest of feathers that grow out of the shoulder area of the bird, Diane said. Most of the peacock feathers that are sold are the type with the "eye pattern," she said, but the birds actually have a variety of different types of feathers which form the fan.

The colorful male is noisy, but the female only makes a squawking sound. When face-to-face with his mate, the peacock will fan his feathers and vibrate them making a sound "that reminds you of rain in the trees," according to Diane.

The Fergusons are hoping to raise some young peacocks. At present, the peahen has four eggs in her nest that they hope will hatch. The Fergusons noted that the last time the female laid eggs, a dog got into the outer pen and frightened her away from the nest, causing her to abandon the eggs.

Although they have named other pets, so far the peacock and peahen are nameless. Perhaps, we suggested, the unique pair could be Charles and

Di, Andrew and Sarah or even Ron and Nancy.

Rick Cushman with Chipper

Parrot at business has people talking

What is unusual about the pet that Canton businessman Rick Cushman owns is not the species of the animal but the talents of it.

Cushman, owner of the Canton Country Market, Canton, has a bird named Chipper — a parrot which he keeps in a cage in a discreet corner of the store. Chipper, mind you, is not just a parrot that talks (not all do, you know) but is a parrot that talks exceedingly well.

"Some birds talk, and you can't understand them," said Cushman. "But with him, he sounds just like a person."

The bird's mimicry is so true-to-life, Cushman said, that "you almost feel you can have a conversation with him."

Sometimes the bird talks so much that Cushman's employees are tempted to put their hands over their ears, they said.

In addition to silver-tongued Chipper, Cushman owns 14 other birds. But Chipper, a Yellow Nape Amazon, is the only bird afforded the privilege of residing in the northwest Canton business.

The others have a special "bird room" in Cushman's home. Chipper once lived there, too, until the bird became too talented for household life.

Chipper was exiled from the home soon after he learned to mimic the cry of Cushman's infant daughter. The Cushmans could never be sure if the noise was being made by the baby or the bird.

The store merchant does not mind the attention the birds, especially Chipper, bring him. He has purchased so many birds, he said, because they are a good investment.

"Do you have a dog or a cat?" Cushman is asked.

"Na," he said, casually dismissing the notion, although his wife Linda does have a cat which is afraid of parrots.

Chipper probably has a vocabulary of 150 to 200 words, Cushman said. He is famous for belting out a "wolf whistle" — perfected by all career construction workers — when he is sure the object of his attentions has no idea he is in the store.

"They start looking around for the person," Cushman said, "and then he'll laugh at them."

Another Chipper specialty is the word "Ma." He uses it when he wants the attention of Mrs. Cushman, store employees said.

He sometimes screams the word "Ma!" repeatedly at the top of his lungs, Cushman said.

"People look around here and say, 'Where the heck is that kid," Cushman chuckled. "If there's any such thing as reincarnation, that's it. There's somebody in that bird."

Kathy Wilson and Charlotte

Pet spider nets gasps and shrieks

Kathy Wilson, of Westland, knows that if she were to take her pet, Charlotte, for a walk down the street, the little thing would be met with shrieks, gasps and utter repulsion by almost everyone who passed by.

Charlotte, you see, is a Mexican red-legged tarantula.

Wilson, who is the owner-manager of Animal House Cove pet store, located on North Wayne Road in Westland, said that while tarantulas are not warm and cuddly, like a cat or a dog, they are definitely one way to get a conversation going.

"Charlotte is definitely a conversation piece. People always want to know so much about her, yet they are usually a little apprehensive about getting too close to her."

Wilson said that she has had Charlotte as a pet for nearly eight years and considers her an ideal pet, as far as maintenance goes.

"The advantage to having a tarantula for a pet is that it is so easy to care for. They don't need to be fed everyday. Usually, I'll just give it some crickets and water and leave it go for a couple days. And, they don't need to be taken everywhere that their owners go, so they're ideal for people who don't like to worry about their pets when they go on vacations."

Wilson said that her pet, which is non-venomous, is virtually harmless, although "tarantulas often have the annoying habit of throwing their hair on people, which can make a person very itchy."

"Charlotte is a very gentle animal," said Wilson. "She can't poison anyone, and she is pretty calm. I think that spiders, in general, have gotten a bad rap with all of the science fiction movies that have been made. Spiders are actually more afraid of us than we are of them."

Wilson said that the only special care that Charlotte needs is a warm, desert-like climate.

"These little furry animals are so gentle and cute. Beauty is only in the eye of the beholder, and I think that people ought to give these little creatures a chance."

An Octodon Degus makes perfect pet

Are you one of those "pet people" who believe that if you've seen one gerbil, you've seen them all? How about an Octodon Degus? These furry little creatures may look like the infamous gerbil, but they are quite different, indeed.

Judy Halley, of the Westland Dog Food Store on Michigan Avenue, Wayne, is the proud owner of not one but three Octodon Degus (yes, that is the plural).

"These 'guys' have nicer personalities than gerbils," said Halley, who should be careful about calling her friends

"guys." "I don't know their sex," said Judy, laughing. "I guess when they have babies, we will know who is who."

Gender isn't the only hard-to-find characteristic of the peculiar pet, Halley admitted. Naming the furry critters can be equally frustrating.

"We can't tell them apart, so I named them Daryl, Daryl and Daryl. You can't go wrong with that," Halley explained.

The degus have yellow-brownish fur and big ears. Their tails are long and furry at the end. They weigh about 8 ounces and are found in Chile, South America. If you are planning on traveling to South America and seeing the little rodent, they are usually around in early morning and late afternoon running with tails in the air or climbing in bushes and trees in search of food.

But what do these "gerbils with big ears and funky tails" eat for dinner? The menu is different and depends on who you ask.

According to Simon & Schuster's Guide to Mammals, degus feed on grass, leaves and seeds. But Halley's degus eat wheat, corn, grapes and, of course, Cheerios.

Daryl, Daryl and Daryl were born in March and were a gift from a customer. They joined the rabbits, cockatiels and six guinea pigs that were already a part of the Halley household.

Gourmets can't beat simplicity

just desserts

Gourmets...who are they, where are they, and why are they saying those terrible things about the rest of us?

Let's face it, many of us just don't find raspberry sauce spooned over baked trout exactly appetizing--and artichoke and cold goose breast will not ever replace a good old fashioned tossed salad...with spinach leaves if we feel really daring.

Here are a few recipes that work well, taste great and are guaranteed to please. Try them for a summer break from the usual ice cream and jello. They're a little more difficult than those recipes, but the results are worth it.

LEMON BARS

- Base:
- 1 cup all-purpose flour
  - 1 stick butter, softened
  - 1/4 cup confectioners' sugar
- Cream together the flour, butter and confectioners' sugar, and press into 8 x 8 pan. Bake in preheated 350 degree oven for 15 minutes, but leave oven temperature at 350 degrees.
- 1/2 cup sugar
  - 2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
  - 1/2 teaspoon baking powder
  - 2 beaten eggs
  - 4 tablespoons lemon juice
  - 1 cup chopped pecans (optional, optional, optional)
  - confectioners' sugar

Mix together the sugar, flour, baking powder, eggs and lemon juice. Sprinkle the pecans (if used) over the cooked base while it's still hot, and pour the egg batter over all. Bake for 20-25 minutes. Cool. Sprinkle with confectioners' sugar after cutting into squares.

(Those who like desserts more sweet than tart may want to use more sugar in the lemon topping--up to double the amount listed will be excellent. And, this really is best without the pecans.)

BRANDY ALEXANDER PIE

- Crust:
- 30 chocolate wafers, crushed (about 1 1/2 cups)
  - 1/3 cup sugar
  - 1/3 cup margarine or butter, softened
- Filling:
- 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
  - 1/2 cup cold water
  - 3 eggs, separated
  - 1/3 cup sugar
  - dash salt
  - 1/4 cup brandy
  - 1/4 cup creme de cacao
  - 1/3 cup sugar
  - 1 cup whipping cream, whipped

Heat oven to 350 degrees. In medium bowl, combine all crust ingredients and mix well. Press cookie mixture over bottom and up sides of a 9-inch pie pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 8 to 10 minutes. Cool.

In small saucepan, sprinkle gelatin over cold water. In small bowl, beat egg yolks slightly. Stir egg yolks, 1/3 cup sugar and salt into gelatin mixture. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until gelatin dissolves and mixture is slightly thickened. Remove from heat and stir in brandy and creme de cacao. Cover, chill for 30 to 45 minutes or until mixture begins to lightly mound.

In small bowl, beat egg whites until foamy. Gradually add 1/3 cup sugar and beat until stiff peaks form, about 3 minutes. In large bowl, carefully fold beaten egg whites into chilled gelatin mixture and fold in whipped cream. Pour filling into cooled crust and store covered in refrigerator. Chill several hours or until firm.

Baking a business
Wayne cook banking on secrets

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

The steamy aroma of freshly cooked vegetables lingers throughout Linda Pratt's Glenwood Street home in Wayne. It must be dinner time!

But what smells so good tonight is not what the family will be eating for this meal, and possibly not even for dinner tomorrow. Pratt usually prepares the family meals ahead of time.

With two children, three dogs, a husband and her own business, time is precious.

"I like to cook. It's relaxing, and cooked food smells good. I like to see the finished product even though it won't last for six years. Luckily, the dogs eat most everything. I like to experiment," Pratt conceded.

Pratt majored in math and computer science during college. It was 17 years ago at the Ford Motor Company that she met her husband, Jim.

The husband-and-wife team joined forces in their first professional venture in the early 1980s when they opened a custom cake-baking and decorating store on Wayne Road in Romulus.

"We talked about opening our business for years. 'Wouldn't it be nice,' we said. But it's not a bowl of cherries," Pratt explained.

As the business became more time-consuming, the Pratts shifted the operation emphasis from baking to supplies. Today, the business has moved to a new location on Middlebelt, near Ford Road, in Garden City. They call the business "Baker's Acre."

"We all cook in my family. We're liberated. My son's specialty is french fries. My daughter loves desserts. And Jim fills in whenever we need a fast, plain meal.

"I do everything in the kitchen as fast and efficiently as possible. I really had to change the way I looked at cooking when I started back to work. I reorganized the entire kitchen. I try not to take any extra steps. You can't stand at one end of the kitchen with something dripping and have the strainer at the other end. Cooking and organization is common sense," explained Pratt.

And here's a few common-sense recipes that Pratt considers to be her best.

CHEESE CASSEROLE BREAD

- 2 1/2 cup all purpose flour
  - 1/4 cup grated parmesan cheese
  - 2 tablespoons parsley, fresh snipped or dried
  - 1 package active dry yeast
  - 1/4 teaspoon baking soda
  - 1 cup cottage cheese
  - 1/3 cup water
  - 2 tablespoons margarine
  - 1 egg
- In large bowl, combine 1 cup flour, parmesan cheese, parsley, yeast and soda. Mix and heat cottage cheese, water and margarine until warm (115-120 degrees). Add to dry mixture. Add egg.
- Beat with electric mixer until blended. Heat on high speed for 3 minutes. By hand, beat the remaining flour. Turn into greased bowl. Cover. Let rise until double in size. Stir down. Spread in greased 1-quart casserole dish. Let rise until nearly double. Bake at 350 degrees for 50-55 minutes. (Cover with foil if crust browns too quickly.)

QUICK PEPPER STEAK

- 1 pound chuck or round beef, slightly frozen, fat trimmed
- 1/4 cup soy sauce
- 1 clove garlic
- 1/4 cup salad oil
- 1 medium onion, thinly sliced
- 1 large red or green pepper, cut into 1 inch squares
- 2 stalks celery, thinly sliced
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 1 cup water
- 2 tomatoes, cut into wedges

With sharp knife, cut beef across grain into thin strips. Combine soy sauce, garlic and ginger. Add beef. Toss and set aside. (Can be prepared ahead of time and refrigerated for up to 24 hours.)

Prepare vegetables. Heat oil in large skillet. Add beef. Toss until browned. (If meat is not tender, cover and simmer over low heat until vegetables are tender.)

Add vegetables. Toss over high heat until vegetables are tender but crisp (about 10 minutes). Mix cornstarch to water. Add to skillet and cook until thickened. Add tomatoes and heat thoroughly. Serve with rice or Chinese-style noodles. Serves four.

PUMPKIN MUFFINS

- 1 1/2 cup all-purpose flour
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 3/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1/4 cup shortening
- 1 beaten egg
- 1/2 cup cooked pumpkin,

canned or fresh cooked

- 1/2 cup milk
- 1/2 cup raisins

Stir flour, sugar, baking powder, salt, cinnamon and nutmeg together. Cut in shortening until mixture is fine. In separate bowl, combine egg, pumpkin and milk. Add to dry mixture. Mix until just moistened.

Stir in raisins. Fill paper-lined muffin cups two-thirds full. Bake in preheated oven at 400 degrees for 18-20 minutes. (If desired, sprinkle muffins with granulated sugar before baking.)

Summer beverages offer quick heat relief

The thermometer outside tops 95 degrees. Inside, the air conditioner is out of service.

But smart hosts will keep guests cool regardless of the elements. One trick--cool, summer beverages.

One sure way to beat summertime thirsts is to add real fruit juices to the drinks. Citrus punches, coolers made with grapefruit, apple and orange pineapple juices will not only quench your guests' thirsts, but they'll be coming back for refills.

Here's a few easy-to-make beverages that will cool down most any summertime scorcher.

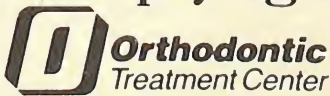

CITRUS COOLER PUNCH

- 1 quart orange juice
  - 1 quart grapefruit juice
  - 1 quart lemon-lime soda
- Mix ingredients in punch bowl. Garnish with orange slices. Yield: 24 one-cup servings.
- Variations:
- Mix grapefruit juice with lemon-lime soda and pour over ice. Makes a great, light summer sparkler.
  - For a frozen treat, fill plastic cups three-fourths full with fruit punch. Place a wooden stick in the center of each cup and freeze.

Great Lakes games

Young skaters have an 'Olympic' dream

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

They're young, ambitious and can come up with some fascinating figures on the ice. And Karla Stewart, Alejandra Guarini, and Kelly Becklehamer also have another common trait: They work hard. More than four hours a day to improve their skills.

The area skaters will be traveling next week to Marquette to compete in the Great Lakes State Games to be staged July 31 through August 2 in conjunction with Michigan's Sesquicentennial Celebration.

Alejandra, who is a 14-year-old Belleville resident, is in New York, where she is competing at Lake Placid. "She's tuning up for the Great Lakes competition," said her mother by telephone. "I know she is looking forward to the trip to Marquette."

Alejandra, born in Columbia, has been skating since she was six-years-old at the Wayne Community Center. A protégé of coaches Rita and David Lowrey of the Detroit Skating Club, Alejandra hopes one day to compete in the Winter Olympics, according to her mother.

Stewart is following in the footsteps of her cousins, she said.

"My cousins loved to skate, so I would tag along to their practices," said the 11-year-old Lowell Middle School student in Canton Township. "Then, I wanted to do what they were doing on the ice."

Skating competitively since she was six, Karla has one shining gem in her young career. She won the 1986 Eastern Great Lakes Regional Championship, a thrill "that has encouraged her to continue to work even harder."

At 5 feet, 4, with blonde hair and blue eyes, Karla dreams of someday filling the skates of Sonja Heine, a Norwegian skater who captured a gold medal at the Winter Olympics back in the 1930's, and went on to capture the hearts of the movie goers of her time.

Karla is coached by Lisa Marcertini.

The trip to Marquette will serve second purpose...Karla will be able to visit her grandparents who live in that city.

Becklehamer, also 12, placed fifth at the 1987 Eastern Great Lakes Figure Skating Regional Championships and is looking forward to the trip to Marquette. She has

Top softball teams to vie in Wayne

Westland's Morris Inc., presently ranked the No.2 men's softball team in the state, will lead a 12-team field to the 1987 Leonard J. Anderson Memorial Softball Tournament.

The tournament, scheduled for three days beginning July 24, will be staged on the diamonds at the Wayne Recreation Complex, Howe and Ann Arbor.

In its 11th year, the Anderson Memorial brings together some of the finest men's softball teams in the state, according to Larry Quartuccio, director.

"Morris is ranked No.2 but there are also other excellent clubs which have accepted the invitation to compete," Quartuccio said.

Others in the field are Greg's Emergency Room (Westland), Jamie's (Livonia), Malarkey's Pub (Westland), Westland Waterproofing/Caverly Construction (Oak Park), Gorilla Engines (Westland), New World (Dearborn Heights), Jack's Sports Center (Romulus), Chemic's /Who Cares (Wayne), Family Heating & Cooling (Westland), Schewe Collision (Flat Rock) and Stadium Sports /Astro Air (St. Clair Shores).

The competition will get underway at 6 p.m. Friday, July 24 and will resume 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Sat., July 25. The championship and consolation rounds are scheduled for Sunday, beginning at 9 a.m.

Morris and Stadium Sports are currently ranked No. 2 and No. 4, respectively, in the state by the United States Softball Association (Class B), and they are the pre-tournament picks.

City championship golf tourney deadline nears

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Area golfers have nine days remaining to register for the 1987 City Championship Golf Tournament.

The tournament will be staged the weekend of August 8-9 at Fellows Creek Golf Course, located at 2936 Lotz Road in Canton Township.

Competition is open to all male amateur golfers residing in the cities of Wayne, Westland, Romulus, Inkster, Garden City and Canton Township. The invitational, organized by the parks and recreation departments of the participating cities and The Associated Newspapers, is set up to determine the city (and township) champions.

"At this point I don't know just how many golfers have entered this year's tournament," noted William Hawley, tournament director. "Some of the competitors apparently have signed up at their respective

sports briefs

Local kickers have signed letters of intent to play soccer this season at Schoolcraft College. First year coach Nick O'Shea announced that his sixth-ranked national team has picked up some of the best talent in the state.

The Ocelots have added to their lineup this year Sharyl Acitelli (Churchill), Jennifer Huegli (Churchill), Lisa Hysko (Plymouth Salem), and Mary Kay Hussey (Stevenson).

Acitelli, 17, is an all-conference and second team all-state fullback who helped the Chargers finish second in the state last season. She's also a member of the Churchill Honor Roll with a 3.3 grade point average.

Huegli graduated from Churchill in 1986 and will enter Schoolcraft as a sophomore. An all-state and all-region performer, 19-year-old Jennifer is a forward who scored 87 goals and assisted on 75 more during her high school career.

A member of the 1987 graduating class, Hysko is 17-years-old. She was picked for all-conference honors in '87 at Salem and also named to the Honor Roll. Lisa played halfback for the Rocks.

Hussey graduated in 1985 and is 20. A two-time prep All-American forward at Stevenson where she recorded 99 goals and 66 assists, she attended Barry University in Florida and was named to the 1985 Top College Freshman Team. She had 19 goals and 15 assists at Barry and also made the Dean's List.

Van Buren Township's inaugural tennis tournament "was a great success" and plans are underway for hosting competition next year, according to Michael D. Long, director of parks and recreation.

"Everyone was very impressed at the excellent workmanship on the beautiful new courts at Belleville High School," Long added. "We look forward to hosting similar tournaments there in the future."

This year's winners and runners-up include Brian Braun, who defeated Brian Banval for the boys under 18 title; Corey Chandler, who posted a victory over Jeff Stittler for the men's 18 to 25 bracket championship; Mike McClure, who turned back Dwayne Franklin for the men's 20 to 35 age group title; Clint Anderson, who stopped Robert Nowlan for the men's 35 & over championship; and Renea Martin, who earned a victory over Anita DeVisser for the women's divisional crown.

Local bowling fans will be able to see some of the top women bowlers in the world when the Satellite Bowl in Dearborn Heights hosts the 1987 Ladies Professional Bowlers $40,000 Miller Lite Classic Tournament.

The tournament will be staged from Aug. 2 to Aug. 6.

The tournament will feature the world's best pro women bowlers. Among the participating professionals will be Detroit area's Aleta Sill (Bowler of the Year for 1984 and 1985), Dede Davidson (Rookie of the Year for 1985), and Cheryl Daniels (top black woman bowler in the United States. Also competing will be Cindy Coburn and Jeanne Maiden, past champions, and Carol Norman, 1987 winner of the U.S. Open.

Pro/Am entries and tickets to view the tournament sessions are available at Satellite Bowl. Proceeds from the ticket sales will be donated to the Special Olympics. For further information, contact Mark or Diane Voight, Satellite Bowl, 25451 Michigan Avenue, or telephone 278-7400.

'Sports Briefs' are compiled and written by staff writer Tom Mooradian. Those wishing to submit information to this column may do so by telephone (729-4000) or in writing. Mail the information to the Associated Newspapers, Sports Desk, 35540 Michigan Avenue, Wayne, Michigan.

Let's address the problems of posture

So your golf game isn't where it should be. Well, help is on the way.

Ed Taylor, who has been golfing for 37 years and is the teaching pro at Mickey's Golf Range in Westland, has agreed to take some time to offer golfers some tips.

Taylor's "Golf Medication" will be appearing on these pages during the season to help you to improve your game.

The 62-year-old Taylor, retired after careers in government, business and industry, is in his "fourth profession" and "first love" he says. "I love the sport. I became addicted to golfing some 35 years ago when I received some hand-me-down hickory shafted golf club.

(For the special attention of the adult 90 to 100-plus shooter on elements of an effective golf swing, from Ed Taylor, teaching pro at Mickey's Golf Range, 38301 Cherry Hill in Westland. Telephone 595-4661 for an appointment.

R: GOLF MEDICATION

FOR YOUR POSTURE

(Dosage: take freely during practice)

The posture at address is like an upright "sitting" position. With both knees flexed, the spine is straight and tilted forward - the neck is bent to permit eyes to look at the ball. The full swing rotates around the tilted axis of the spine.

If pain persists, ask for demonstration therapy by "Doctor" ED TAYLOR, Teaching Pro.
